

Daily Devotion For October 6, 2021

“For God alone my soul waits in silence, for my hope is from him. He alone is my rock and my salvation, my fortress; I shall not be shaken. On God rests my deliverance and my honor; my mighty rock, my refuge is in God. Trust in him at all times O people; pour out your heart before him; God is a refuge for us.” --Psalm 62:5-8

How much do you rely upon your internet connection? Yesterday for some reason, my laptop was not able to connect to the internet. Sherry’s computer was fine but I just wasn’t able to get my internet to work. Thankfully, Sherry is much more tech savvy than I and researched the problem and was able to get me connect.

It’s funny but our culture has become so dependent on the internet. If you are reading this devotional, chances are you are connected to the internet. Through email we can connect with anyone anywhere in the world. We can get so much information on the internet and to some extent, that dependence on information is understandable. The internet has opened a world of opportunities and possibilities in virtually every aspect of human existence.

While I was waiting for the internet to connect so that I could email this devotion I was reading Psalm 62. This psalm reminded me that that God and not the internet is completely dependable and worthy of our hope and trust. Psalm 62 says that God is our rock, salvation, fortress, deliverer and refuge” (vv. 6-8).

Thought For Today: Reflect on the dependability of God and that we never lose connection with him.

Today’s Prayer Focus: Thank God that He is trustworthy and that we can trust in him at all times, that He never fails. Continue to use this week’s prayer fuel as part of your daily devotions. Deo Volente.
