

Daily Devotion For August 26, 2021

“In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.” Genesis 1:1

Early tomorrow morning, I’m taking off for a quick vacation to Yosemite National Park. This weekend a special event honoring Chiura Obata will take place in Tuolumne Meadows and I have been invited by Chiura’s grandchildren to attend.

I can’t remember the last time I was in Tuolumne Meadows but it must have been at least 15 years or more. In 1975 I hiked the John Muir Trail with two of my cousins. Each day I asked the question, “Is there a God who created all of this beauty for me to enjoy.” After returning from that trip, I opened the bible and read the first 10 words of Genesis 1:1, “In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.” That was the answer to the question I had been asking all summer long.

Shortly after that I invited Christ into my life to be my Savior and Lord.

Psalm 19:1 says, “The heavens declare the glory of God, the skies proclaim the work of his hands.”

Thought For Today: Romans 1:20 tells us that we can know God by his creation. While I will be up in Yosemite enjoying the beauty of God’s creation and majestic expanse of the star lit heavens, I hope that you can take time tonight to go outside and see if you can catch the power of the night sky!

Today’s Prayer Focus: Praise God for being a Creator God who created all things for us to enjoy. Continue to review this week’s prayer fuel. Deo Volente.

As I will be up in the Sierra’s without access to the internet,
I will resume the daily devotions next week.
